Dear Mr Carwithen,

Re: Your retirement
Lee Carwithen

This letter contains important information to help you to turn your pension savings into a retirement income. It's important that you read this letter and consider all your options – it will help you get the best value from your savings.

Under current legislation, you are entitled to draw your retirement benefits from your pension at any time after age 55. As you will soon turn 50, we are writing to inform you of your options in order that you have sufficient time to make an informed decision about how you wish to proceed.

Buying a retirement income has been made easier recently and this letter and the accompanying information will help you to do this. You should also shop around to find the best possible income.

If you are considering drawing your benefits, we would strongly recommend that you seek regulated financial advice and/or guidance from the free and impartial service set up by the government, known as Pension Wise.

Your options

Morgan Lloyd Invest SIPP offers its pension members various options when taking benefits, allowing you to tailor how you access your retirement income to suit your individual circumstances.

Please be aware that your options may vary depending on the investments held by your pension scheme.

A) You can keep your pension pot where it is
You do not need to do anything with your pension pot yet. Reaching age 55 is not a deadline to act, you can leave your pension pot with us and we will contact you again periodically to remind you of the options available. Delaying taking your money may give your pension pot a chance to grow, but it could go down in value too.

B) You can get a guaranteed income
Some or all of your funds can be moved out of the pension scheme to an insurance company or annuity provider in return for a promise of a guaranteed income for life (known as an annuity). You can take up to 25% of your pot as tax-free cash (limited by the Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowances) and buy an annuity with the remaining 75%. If you have built up more than one pension pot, you can combine them into one annuity. There are many different types of lifetime annuity, each designed to suit different personal circumstances. Fixed term annuities (which provide income for a fixed period, rather than for life) are also available.

C) You can get an adjustable income(flexi-access drawdown)
You can leave your money in your pension pot and take an income from it. There is no restriction on the amount you can take from your fund or on the frequency of payments. You can take up to 25% of your pot tax-free (limited by the Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowances) and any income drawn will be taxed whether you take it as a regular income or as lump sums. You do not need to take an income if you do not wish to do so. Any money left in your pension pot may remain invested, which may give your pension pot a chance to grow, but it could go down in value too.

D) You can take your pension pot as a number of lump sums
You can leave your money in your pension pot and take lump sums from it as and when you need, until your money runs out or you choose another option. You can decide when and how much you take out. Any money left in your pension pot may remain invested, which may give your pension pot a chance to grow, but it could go down in value too. Each time you take a lump sum, normally 25% of it is tax-free (limited by the Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowances) and the rest will be taxed.

E) You can take your whole pension pot in one go

You can take the whole amount as a single lump sum. You can usually take 25% of the pension fund tax-free (limited by the Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowances) – the rest will be taxed. You will need to plan how you will provide an income for the rest of your retirement.

F) You can mix your options

You do not have to only select one option from the above, you can mix your options. You also have the option to shop around and move your funds to one or more different providers should you wish, although the timescales for doing this will vary according to the assets held by your scheme.

It is important to note that, once you have started to take any taxable income from your pension, the amount of tax relief available on future pension contributions may reduce from £60,000 per year to £10,000 per year. This may influence when you decide to start taking your retirement income.

The different options available will have different features, different rates of payment and different charges. It is important that you understand these, and the different tax implications associated with drawing your benefits.

The accompanying booklet, 'Your pension: your choices' produced by the Money and Pensions Service includes further information about the ways in which you could take your retirement income and will help you to decide what retirement options best suit your needs, find this booklet here - https://moneyhelper.apsmos.com/ViewProduct.html?sp=Sengyourpensionyourchoices-337

Death benefits under your Morgan Lloyd Invest SIPP

If you die before age 75, any death benefits can be paid to your beneficiaries, as a lump sum and/or income. Lump sum payments are tax free up to the Lump Sum and Death Benefit Allowance (LSDBA). Lump sums in excess of the LSDBA are taxed at the recipient's marginal rate of income tax. Income payments are tax free. Lump sum payments must be made within 2 years to be paid tax free, and for income payments to be tax free, the funds must have been designated to drawdown within 2 years. In the event of death on or after age 75, benefits can still be paid as a lump sum and/or income, however all lump sum and income payments will be taxed at the recipient's marginal rate of income tax.

You can nominate whoever you would like as your beneficiaries, this could be your spouse, children or grandchildren, or you can nominate someone unrelated to you, if you wish. You also do not need to leave the benefits to just one person; you can split them in whatever proportion you like, so each of your beneficiaries receives a share of your fund.

Please note that death benefits will be payable to your nominated beneficiaries at the discretion of the trustee (s) of your pension. It is important to ensure that your Nomination of Beneficiaries form is up to date. If you would like to update your nominated beneficiaries, please do not hesitate to contact us and we will provide you with a form for completion or you can visit www.morgan-lloyd.co.uk/nomination-form/ to update the details online.

Protecting yourself against pension scams

Beware of pension scams contacting you unexpectedly about an investment or business opportunity that you have not spoken to them about before. If you place your pension savings into a scam, you run the very real risk of losing a significant amount, if not all of your pension savings, as well as facing tax charges of up to 55% and high commission or arrangement fees. Please read the enclosed ScamSmart leaflet, which will help give you the best possible protection against scammers.

What happens next?

If you want to leave your funds as they are for now, you do not need to do anything, you will still receive your annual valuations from us, and we will be in contact with you again in due course to remind you of the options available.

If you are considering drawing your retirement benefits, please do make use of the Pension Wise guidance available or seek advice from your financial adviser.

Yours sincerely,

John Dowding
Technical Director

Retirement Risk Warnings

The options available at retirement can be complex and sometimes irreversible. It is essential that you understand the importance and implications of the decision that you make when accessing your pension savings. You should ensure that your decisions are reviewed on an ongoing basis to ensure that they are in line with your intended investment and retirement objectives.

Shopping around

It is important that you shop around to find the best deal for you, as you would with any other purchase. Other providers might offer products that are more appropriate for your needs and circumstances and may offer a higher level of income at retirement. The Pension Wise website provides more information on Shopping Around: www.pensionwise.gov.uk/shop-around.

Sustainability of retirement income

Your current pension value is £16,351.60 and according to our records your intended retirement age is 75.You need to be aware that your pension fund may run out of money if you take out too much too early. It's important not to underestimate your own life expectancy. If you don't have an increasing income, even low levels of inflation can, over time, significantly reduce your standard of living in retirement.

Health

People who have a medical condition, are in poor health, smoke or are overweight, may be able to get a significantly higher level of sustainable income through buying an 'enhanced annuity'.

Tax

You need to consider that any income that is taken from your pension fund will be added to any existing income that you may have in order to determine the income tax payable. This may mean that you pay a higher rate of income tax than normal. If you take the money in a number of different tax years you may pay less tax than if you take it all in one go. The sum that you take out of your pension fund may be subject to capital gains tax (if invested within a non-pension product) and inheritance tax. If you invest money taken out of the pension scheme, the tax treatment may be different from investments held within the pension. The amount you can save into your pension annually without incurring a tax charge is limited by the Annual Allowance. Any contribution paid in excess of this will be taxed at your marginal rate of income tax. The Annual Allowance may be reduced depending on your earnings. If you have taken certain benefits from your pension fund, a lower annual allowance will apply to future contributions to money purchase pension schemes.

Means Tested Benefits

If you are taking money from your pension fund, this may impact on the amount of means tested benefit that you are entitled to.

Debt

Money in your pension fund is usually protected from creditors, for example if you are bankrupt. Once the money is paid out of your scheme, any creditors may be able to place a claim on the money.

Charges

Charges can vary depending on what you decide to do with your pension pot in retirement. Check with the relevant provider beforehand to see whether your preferred option will result in any fees or charges.

If you plan to take the cash to invest somewhere else, check what the charges are before you cash in your pension and compare these with the charges levied on your current pension savings.

Investment Scams

Beware of pension scams and people contacting you unexpectedly about an investment or business opportunity that you've not spoken to them about before. You could lose all your money and face charges of up to 55% and extra fees. For more information on how to protect yourself from scams, visit the Pension Regulator's website: www.pension-scams.com.

Don't let a scammer enjoy your retirement

Find out how pension scams work, how to avoid them and what to do if you suspect a scam.

Scammers can be articulate and financially knowledgeable, with credible websites, testimonials and materials that are hard to distinguish from the real thing. Scammers design attractive offers to persuade you to transfer your pension pot to them or to release funds from it. It is then invested in unusual and high-risk investments like overseas property, renewable energy bonds, forestry, storage units, or simply stolen outright.

Scam tactics include:

- contact out of the blue

- promises of high / guaranteed returns

- free pension reviews

- access to your pension before age 55

- pressure to act quickly

If you suspect a scam, report it

- Report to the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA)
  by contacting their Consumer Helpline on 0800 111 6768 or using the reporting form at www.fca.org.uk
- Report to Action Fraud
  on 0300 123 2040 or at www.actionfraud.police.uk
- If you're in the middle of a transfer, contact your provider immediately and then get in touch with The Pensions Advisory Service (TPAS) at www.thepensionsadvisoryservice.org.uk

www.fca.org.uk/scamsmart

Four simple steps to protect yourself from pension scams

Reject unexpected offers

If you're contacted out of the blue about your pension, chances are it's high risk or a scam. Be wary of free pension review offers. A free offer out of the blue from a company you have not dealt with before is probably a scam. Fortunately, research shows that 95% of unexpected pension offers are rejected.*

Check who you're dealing with

Check the Financial Services Register (www.register.fca.org.uk) to make sure that anyone offering you advice or other financial services is FCA-authorised.

If you don't use an FCA-authorised firm, you also won't have access to the Financial Ombudsman Service or the Financial Services Compensation Scheme. So you're unlikely to get your money back if things go wrong. If the firm is on the FCA Register, you should call the Consumer Helpline on 0800 111 6768 to check the firm is permitted to give pension advice.

Beware of fraudsters pretending to be from a firm authorised by the FCA, as it could be what we call a 'clone firm'. Use the contact details provided on the FCA Register, not the details they give you.

Don't be rushed or pressured

Take your time to make all the checks you need – even if this means turning down an 'amazing deal'. Be wary of promised returns that sound too good to be true and don't be rushed or pressured into making a decision.

Get impartial information and advice

The Pensions Advisory Service (www.thepensionsadvisoryservice.org.uk) – Provides free independent and impartial information and guidance.

Pension Wise (www.pensionwise.gov.uk) – If you're over 50 and have a defined contribution (DC) pension, Pension Wise offers pre-booked appointments to talk through your retirement options.

Financial advisers – It's important you make the best decision for your own personal circumstances, so you should seriously consider using the services of a financial adviser. If you do opt for an adviser, be sure to use one that is regulated by the FCA and never take investment advice from the company that contacted you or an adviser they suggest, as this may be part of the scam.

Be ScamSmart with your pension. Check who you are dealing with.
